What is care?

That world includes our bodies, our selves, our environment, and the relations that maintain and repair a world so that humans and non-humans can live in it as well as possible in a complex life-sustaining web […] inviting us to ask "For whom?" but also "Who cares?" "What for?" "Why do 'we' care?" and mostly "How to care?"

- Matters of Care, Maria Puig de La Bellacasa

What is care?

Care involves tasks that makes living better in interdependence but are often considered petty and unimportant, unproductive, however vital they are for living relations […] "without which our lives do not work out", and the complexity of which makes them difficult to value, to reduce to a schedule, or to enclose in fixed tasks that "start here and end there". Care all the way down.

- Maria Puig de La Bellacasa, quoting Silvia López Gil
